

Spammers are falsifying my email address on their heading without my authorization. My email account is filled with hundreds of notices of undeliverable mail along with rather curt remarks from people who have received mail from these unethical marketers. I find that my email account is no longer my account but is up for grabs for any of these sorry individuals. I am a 100% disabled Vet on a fixed income and was using my email to stay in correspondence with family and friends. Also I was using the internet to buy stuff and pay my bills. This all gets me headaches and makes me very angry. They do this thing and are protected with privacy rights (I tried to find out who they are). Thank you for your kind attention. Louis Broussard
